postponed for a considerable time. Others again say that Kútaw robs it of its garments and dons them himself, to the great dismay and shame of the poor kadudúwá, who from now on is obliged to wear either no clothes or at least only such as are not cared for any more by its companions at the other side of the grave. The latter informants usually add that Kútaw refuses to ferry this kadudúwá over the pond, unless it gives its brand-new clothes to him; some of them say that it may happen that Kútaw takes to himself not only the clothes, but also the whole kadudúwá (as a kind of servant). One more detail was given me by a Bayag informant: if the dead person has only one of his forearms tattooed (not both of them), Kútaw cuts off this tattooed limb and keeps it to himself.

To resume: some informants state that all kadudúwá are always ferried over the pond by Kútaw, but that those whose inndt wears no new clothes, remain like that at least for some time to come, or are left to their own devices as soon as they reach the other side, without being able to find their relatives, at least immediately, while those whose inndt wear new clothes without rent are either despoiled by Kútaw or kept back for at least a considerable time from the enjoyment that is their due. Other informants state that some kadudúwá are simply scorned by Kútaw and left on this side of the pond: either those whose inndt wear old clothes, or those whose new garments have not been torn. On the other hand, when asked what kadudúwá are living in the realm of the dead, even these last informants generally affirm that they all do.

A labbáń is a kind of lagoon or pool of stagnant water, of a type found in abundance all along the northern coast of Luzon, between Sanchez Mira and Aparri, and even farther east. At Nagbabalayan there is also a labbáń, which consists of a pool of water separated from the Apayaw river by a small elevation of land; at every large rise of the Apayaw river, however, it forms one with the latter. This Nagbabalayan labbáń is the regular abode of crocodiles, to whom the Nagbabalayan people offer gifts at every sacrifice. But the name lablabbáń belongs exclusively to the pond that separates our abode from that of the dead. Such a reduplication as occurs here usually hints at something similar to what the simple stem implies. Thus lablabbáń would mean a labbáń that is not an ordinary one, and, considering its place and use, no further proof is needed to convince everybody that it is a very peculiar pool indeed. The following mysterious fact adds to its differentiation from any other labbáń:
